(May 30, 1830 – March 20, 1902)

Orrin Ormsby Pitcher arrived in Mankato, the seat of Blue Earth County, in 1857, four years after the county was formed.¹ Two years later, after reading law in the office of future senator Morton Wilkinson, he was admitted to the bar and began to taking a “leading part in the affairs of the village.” He was elected county attorney twice, serving four years.² He later served one term in the state House of Representatives, twelve years on the city council, and years and years on numerous other local boards.

His entry in History of the Minnesota Valley, published in 1882, stated:

O. O. Pitcher was born May 30, 1830, in Cattaraugus county, New York. He spent some time in that state, Illinois and Minnesota, attending school and teaching; came to Mankato in 1857, studied law and in 1859 was admitted to the bar. For four years he served as prosecuting attorney; is now alderman of the city; since 1875 has been resident director of the State Normal school and in 1868-'9 he was a member of the state legislature. Married in 1859, Mary Warren. Their children are Plumer W., Grace and Fannie.³

In 1885, he was elected the first judge of the Mankato Municipal Court, which the legislature had just established.⁴ The term of this office was three years, its annual salary $1,000. He served one term,

² County attorneys had two year terms. Stat., ch 7. § 66, at 164 (1850); re-codified Stat., ch. 8, §180, at 100 (1863).

⁴ Pitcher’s obituary states that he was “appointed” to the Municipal Court by Governor Hubbard; however, §2 of the law authorizing that court requires its first judge to be chosen in an “election to be holden on the first (1st) Tuesday in April, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five (1885).” For sure, he was elected, not appointed, but the name of his opponent and the election results are not available because of a gap in Mankato newspapers at the Historical Society.

The Mankato Municipal Court was authorized by the 24th Legislature on March 7, 1885. Excerpts from 1885 Special Laws, ch. 119, §§ 1-3, 19, 20, are posted in the Appendix, Part A, below, at 5-8.

and was succeeded by Jerome E. Porter. In 1893, he received the Republican party endorsement for Special Judge of the Municipal Court, but lost to Democrat Byron Hughes.⁵

The Judge died of a heart condition on Thursday, March 20, 1902, at the age of seventy-one. The next day, the Free Press carried his obituary:

Final Summons.

Was One of the Best Known Residents of Mankato. Received Honors From the People.

O. O. pitcher died at his residence at 417 South Second street at 10:20 o'clock last night. While his death was not unexpected, it came suddenly, and was due to angina pectoris from which he had been a sufferer more or less for sixteen years past. During the past three months the attacks of his trouble came on more frequently than they had before that time, and Mr. Pitcher was a great sufferer, the pain being excessive. A week ago Wednesday he was taken with a cold or grip, and this intensified his trouble. He did not again leave his house. Yesterday he was up and around and ate a hearty supper for him, spending the early evening reading, playing solitary and smoking. He was accustomed to having one to five attacks a day, and one of unusual severity came on at 7:30 o'clock

Drs. Steel and Andrews attended the sick man, but were unable to prevent the fatal outcome, although all possible was done for the sufferer. Mr. Pitcher was conscious to the last and conversed with his physicians. Suddenly he threw up his hands and all was over.

Orin Ormsby Pitcher was the son of Orin Pitcher and wife, formerly Amanda Woodruff. He was born at or near Jamestown, Chautauqua county, New York, May 30th, 1830, and when nineteen years old moved with his parents to Warrensville, Ill. Later the family moved to Janesville, Iowa. Mr. Pitcher was a student, of Mr. Holt, whose daughter was for several years of music and reading in the normal school. He attended Shurtleff college, Alton Ill., for three years.

Mr. Pitcher came to Mankato in 1857, soon after leaving college, and at once took a leading part in the affairs of the village. A year after his arrival he entered the law office of Morton Wilkinson and Cramer Burt, and as soon as he was admitted to practice he formed a partnership with Col. J. E. Tourtellotte, the firm name being Tourtellotte & Pitcher. He practiced law until the municipal court was established, when the governor of the state appointed him the first municipal judge.

During the early sixties Mr. Pitcher served two terms as county attorney, and in the latter part of the sixties he represented the county in the legislature two terms. He was a member of the first fire company, served on the council several years and on the school board for many years. He was resident director of the state norm school for several years, and was the first president or the board of public works. He belonged to the Masonic order and was a Knight Templar.

Mr. Pitcher was united in marriage in 1859 with Miss Mary Warren, who survives him, am well as three children, P. W. Pitcher, Mrs. Grace Fox and Miss Fannie Pitcher, all of this city.

The deceased, during his life time, accumulated a comfortable property, and besides this leaves a $2,000 paid policy in the Northwestern Mutual Milwaukee. When his health began to fail he retired from active business pursuits, and led a quiet life, as void of excitement as possible. He was a regular attendant at the Episcopal church as long as he was able to, although not a member.

Mr. Pitcher was a familiar figure on our street, and he will be missed. He always took an active and intellectual interest in local as well as national affairs, and was a constant reader. He helped shape a good deal of municipal legislation, besides being practically the author of one of the city charters. In politics he was a consistent advocate of the principles of the Republican party, and was elected several times on that ticket.

The deceased was broad in his views, a man of strong character and sterling integrity. He leaves a record of which any citizen might well be proud. He did his full share toward the development of the city and its interests, was a friend of education, and in the broad sense was a friend of the people. His death will be sincerely regretted, but his memory will long survive and will be a fitting monument to his life's work.⁶

The following year, a "summing up" of the Judge appeared in a history of Mankato:

PITCHER, Hon. Orrin Ormsby — The first municipal judge of Mankato was born May 30, 1830, at Jamestown, New York. When nineteen years old he accompanied his parents, Orrin and Miranda (Woodruff) Pitcher, to Warrenville, Illinois. He attended Shurtleff College at Alton, Illinois, for three years and then, in 1857, came to Mankato; studied law in the office of Wilkinson and Burt, and in 1859, was admitted to the bar. He at once took an active and prominent part in all the public affairs of the community. His uprightness and integrity won for him the confidence of the people and he was frequently honored by them with positions of trust. For four years he was County Attorney of Blue Earth County. He was a member of the City Council of Mankato for twelve years. He served as resident director of the State Normal School for seven years and in 1868-9 was a member of the Legislature.

When the Mankato Municipal Court was established he was appointed its first judge. He was on the commission which appraised the lands of the Winnebago Agency. He also drafted mainly, one or two of the early city charters of Mankato. He served as president of the Board of Public Works, and was a member of the Board of Education for a number of years. He was a prominent member of the Masonic Lodge.

Mr. Pitcher was married in 1859 to Miss Mary Warren, who had come to Mankato with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. D. Their union was blessed with three children: Plummer W., Mrs. Grace Fox and Fannie. Judge Pitcher died March 20th, 1902.⁷ □
