RAMSEY COUNTY BAR ASSOCIATION
ANNUAL MEMORIAL EXERCISES

Court House, Saturday, April 13, 1963, 10:00 A.M.

On Saturday, April 13, 1963, Memorial Services in honor of those members of the Ramsey County Bar who died during the past year were held in the Court House.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF RAMSEY.

District Court, Second Judicial District.

Present: Judge John B. Sanborn of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals; Judge Dennis F. Donovan of the United States District Court; Justices Martin A. Nelson and James C. Otis of the Minnesota Supreme Court; Judges Clayton Parks, Albin S. Pearson, Robert V. Rensch, Ronald E. Hachey, John W. Graff, Archie L. Gingold, Leonard J. Keyes, Edward D. Mulally of the Ramsey County District Court, and Judge Arthur A. Stewart, retired, Ramsey County District Court; Judge Andrew A. Glenn of the Ramsey County Probate Court; Judges J. Jerome Plunkett, David E. Marsden, Otis H. Godfrey, Jr., and J. Clifford Janes of the St. Paul Municipal Court.

Also present: Officers and members of the Ramsey County Bar Association, and families and friends of deceased members of the Bar.

JUDGE PARKS: The Court at this time is pleased to recognize Mr. William H. Fallon, president of the Ramsey County Bar.

MR. FALLON: Your Honors please, ladies and gentlemen, as is our annual custom, we meet here today to present memorials on behalf of the members of the Bench and Bar who have died during the past year. These memorials will be presented under the chairmanship of Mr. Mortimer Miley. Mr. Miley.

MR. MILEY: Thank you. May it please this court and friends: memorials have been prepared for presentation here today by various committees made up from the membership of the Ramsey County Bar Association in behalf of the following recently deceased members thereof:

Judge Carlton F. McNally
Mr. R. Edison Barr
Mr. Harvey J. Diehl
Mr. Roland J. Faricy
Mr. Lucius N. Foster
Mr. Linus C. Glotzbach
Mr. Allen L. Gray
Mr. J. Lisle Jesmer
Mr. Louis F. Kieseewetter
Mr. Carlyle Knudtson
Mr. Walter E. Kunze
Mr. Geoffrey P. Mahoney
Mr. Thomas J. Spence
Mr. Edgar G. Vaughan
Mr. Robert F. Wille
Mr. Emil O. Winter

MR. MILEY: The committee in charge of the preparation of the memorial for Judge Carlton F. McNally consists of the Honorable Ronald E. Hachey, Mr. John B. Burke and Mr. William B. Randall. Mr. Randall will present the memorial for Judge McNally.

Mr. Randall read the memorial for Judge McNally.

Judge Carlton F. McNally was born on December 7, 1885, in Oakdale, Massachusetts, and received his elementary education at Fitchburg. He graduated from the St. Paul College of Law in 1910 and engaged in the private practice of law as a member of the firm of O'Brien, Young & Stone, and later associated with Michael Doherty. He was married to Catherine McCann in 1911. Five children were born of their marriage, four of whom are still living.

The Judge entered military service in 1917. Upon graduation of the Officers Training School he served as a lieutenant in the 340th Machine Gun Battalion, 89th Division. He saw action at St. Mihiel and the Argonne offensive. Following the Armistice, he served in the army of occupation.

Returning to St. Paul from his military service, Judge McNally was appointed Assistant Corporation Counsel in 1919. In 1922 he was appointed Corporation Counsel and served until March 30, 1925, at which time he was appointed a Judge of the District Court of Ramsey County. He was re-elected in 1926 and served continuously until his retirement in 1959.

Judge McNally will be remembered for many of his fine contributions that he gave to his community, and among the highlights of his career, and of which he was most proud and dedicated, was his interest in Scouting. He served over 20 years on the Archdiocesan Committee on Scouting and was credited with a great part of the success in the promotion of Scouting in the Catholic parishes throughout the Archdiocese. Because of his dedication and work, he was designated as a National Field Scout Commissioner. He served as vice president of the Indianhead Council, Boy Scouts of America, for more than 20 years. He was the proud possessor of the St. George award, which is the highest honor ever given a Catholic layman by the Catholic Church for volunteer service and contribution to the field of scouting. The Judge was also honored with the Silver Beaver Award from the Boy Scouts of America for distinguished service to boys. He presided on the Court of Honor of the Boy Scouts for over 25 years, finally relinquishing that responsibility because of the press of other business.

In addition to Scouting, the Judge was also active in promoting the welfare of his community. He served as President of the St. Paul Athletic Club and the St. Paul Exchange Club. He was a Past Grand Knight of the Knights of Columbus, and a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. He was one of the incorporators of Post 8 of the American Legion. In addition to these, the Judge served on many committees of various natures and contributed much of his time and efforts toward the betterment of St. Paul and surrounding communities.

Judge McNally was an outstanding authority on the treatment of juveniles and Juvenile Court procedures. He was a member of the Minnesota Juvenile Court Judges Association, of the National Council of Juvenile Court Judges, and he was a member of the National Probation and Parole Association. In 1955 he was honored by the latter organization, and it was in that year also that the National Conference of Catholic Chaplains on Scouting presented him with the St. George Award for his work among Catholic scouts.

Judge McNally acted as Juvenile Judge for almost a quarter of a century in the Ramsey County District Court. He was a pioneer in many of the practices that have since become law and, to a large extent, a part of the model National Juvenile Court Act. He was dedicated to the proposition that the Juvenile Court, and all other resources of our community, be made available to serve our boys and girls to the end that they may eventually take their useful places in society after they have reached adulthood. He was extremely fair, but firm, in his decisions. He will be remembered by many outstanding leaders of our community for the assistance that he gave them in helping them over some of the rough spots during their troublesome years as they were growing up in our community.

Judge McNally was a living example of a physical fitness program. He practiced moderation in all of his habits, and although slowed temporarily by a coronary in the year 1955, he was back on the streets of St. Paul, enjoying one of his long walks soon thereafter, and was physically active until just a matter of days before his death. In fair weather or foul, he insisted upon walking to work each morning, and many business establishments along West 7th Street, it was reported, could set their clocks and watches each morning as the good Judge waved a cheery hello or greeting in passing.

Among those who were close to the Judge, some will remember one of his last remarks to the effect that he had a soft spot in his heart for the community of St. Paul and its people. He felt that he was the beneficiary of so much from his community that he attempted to return some of his gratification in the form of his personal service, and more particularly where it could be best served — helping the youth in some of their serious problems. He was keenly aware of the problems and difficulties sometimes encountered by the various social agencies and was always ready to arouse public interest and to obtain adequate help when needed so that the agencies could properly function as planned and provided when they were formulated or instituted.

He was referred to by the authorities who wrote of juvenile problems and delinquency throughout our nation, and part of his life's work was once portrayed in a documentary television film concerning the same subject. He protected the weak from the aggressor; he administered in all fairness to the meek and unfortunate; his judicial decisions were intelligent and decisive, but in almost every instance where some unfortunate individual was involved, the good Judge's decision reflected a small part of his heart. He was possessed of a great sense of humor which made life for other public servants closely associated with him very pleasant, and their tasks and duties that much lighter.

He is missed by many, and the landmarks that he created and left here will remain with us as an inspiration to perpetuate the ideals and our faith in human beings which he so nobly advanced.

Respectfully submitted,

WILLIAM B. RANDALL

MR. MILEY: A committee consisting of Anthony L. Fratto, O. A. Blanchard and L. E. Matteson has prepared the memorial for Mr. R. Edison Barr, which will be presented for the committee at this time by Mr. Fratto.

Mr. Fratto read the memorial for Mr. Barr.

R. Edison Barr was born in Almena, Kansas on August 5, 1891, the son of William Barr and Effie Barr.

He received his elementary and high school education in Mankato, Minnesota, attended the Mankato State Teachers' College, then completed his college studies at Bradley University, Peoria, Illinois. He taught manual arts courses in various high schools in Wisconsin and Minnesota, and while attending the St. Paul College of Law, he taught in the St. Paul High Schools.

Mr. Barr entered the United States Armed Forces in 1917 and upon his discharge was employed by the West Publishing Company of St. Paul as an Editor. On August 8, 1931, he married Miss Elizabeth Kay. Two daughters and a son were born to them, namely: Janice Barr of West St. Paul, Minnesota, and R. E. Barr, Jr. and Audrey Danahy of St. Paul, Minnesota. He died October 5, 1962, leaving his widow, two daughters, one son and five grandchildren, and a sister.

In his early years of practice, he was associated with Richard Mason, then Charles Dohs. He later became associated with L. E. Matteson, Anthony L. Fratto and Donald Shanahan.

Mr. Barr engaged in a number of hobbies, among which photography was his favorite. This hobby eventually led to his being interested in handwriting, which he developed to such a degree that he became a Questioned Document Examiner in 1940. He was a member of the American Academy of Forensic Sciences and the American Society of Questioned Document Examiners. Membership in the latter group was limited to twenty examiners, Mr. Barr being the only examiner in the Northwest area. He was diligent in research and preparation, industrious and analytical in the consideration of the problems of his clients and sympathetic in his understanding.

He is and will be deeply missed not only by his family, but by those who had the privilege of knowing and associating with him. It is a privilege indeed to pay tribute to and do honor to such a man and lawyer.

Respectfully submitted,

MR. MILEY: The Honorable John W. Graff, Joseph P. Johnson and Louis P. Sheahan have prepared the memorial for Mr. Harvey J. Diehl, which will now be presented for the committee by Mr. Sheahan.

Mr. Sheahan read the memorial for Mr. Diehl.

Harvey J. Diehl was born July 17, 1891, at Saint Paul, Minnesota, the son of John Franklin Diehl and Julia Hurley Diehl, prominent pioneer residents of said City. He remained a resident of said City without interruption thereafter and until his death which occurred January 28, 1963. He received his elementary and preparatory education in the public schools of the City of Saint Paul and thereafter attended the College of St. Thomas, the University of Minnesota, and the St. Paul College of Law from which last mentioned institution he was graduated with the Degree of LL.B. on June 26, 1919. He was admitted to the practice of law by the Supreme Court of Minnesota on June 27, 1919. He was a member of the Ramsey County Bar Association, the Minnesota State Bar Association, and the William Mitchell College of Law Alumni Association. He was a Charter Member of the Ramsey Senate of the Delta Theta Phi Law Fraternity.

Harvey J. Diehl demonstrated extraordinary knowledge and aptitude in the field of traffic and rate regulation and therein merited and attained an extensive reputation particularly in the Northwest area of our Nation as one of the ablest Traffic and Rate Experts. Prior to his admission to the Minnesota Bar and for some time thereafter he owned and operated the Mississippi Valley Rate Bureau at Saint Paul, Minnesota. In said field he attained high distinction for his successful prosecution of Appeals from the Decisions of Minnesota Railroad and Warehouse Commission, as Counsel for the South Saint Paul Livestock Exchange in re said Exchange vs. Saint Paul Union Stockyards Company and in the Mixed Livestock Carload Case vs. Nine Railroads wherein he obtained reversals of the subject orders of said Commission and secured for said Exchange, its members and shippers the establishment of a single yardage rate and resultant retroactive rebates representative of savings to said Exchange, its members and shippers substantial in amount.

Harvey J. Diehl entered the general practice of law at Saint Paul, Minnesota, in the year 1921 and actively engaged therein thereafter until his death. He possessed considerable personal magnetism and excellent presence, a deep and resonant voice and extraordinary oratorical ability. He employed these desirable qualities with great effect in the numerous important jury trials in which he participated and wherein he consistently demonstrated masterful technique, broad knowledge of law and great zeal for justice. He was a forceful and impeccable member of the Bar who attained and merited an extensive reputation as an effective trial lawyer. Studious endeavor, high professional standards and forthrightness characterized his notable career as a member of the Minnesota Bar. In the later years of his career the greater part of his work as a lawyer was devoted to probate, corporate and trust affairs.

Harvey J. Diehl was indeed a humanitarian whose interest in the plight and welfare of his fellowmen was unflagging. His charities and philanthropic works were done in a manner and with the restriction that the same would remain anonymous. He willingly and extensively gave of his time, talents and assets to the service of others and was ever active in civic matters pertaining to city, state and nation.

Harvey J. Diehl was an extraordinarily warm and vibrant person and a brilliant lawyer whose memory long will be cherished by his multitude of friends, clients and colleagues. He is survived by his wife Cecile Moeller Diehl, his two sisters, Mrs. P. W. Hannon and Mrs. William J. Dunn, of St. Paul, and his brother, George M. Diehl, of Richmond, California.

The laudable principles to which Harvey J. Diehl adhered characterized his great respect for the canons of legal ethics and zeal for justice under law.

MR. MILEY: A committee consisting of The Honorable James C. Otis, Harry G. Costello and Richard A. Moore has prepared the memorial for Mr. Roland J. Faricy, which will now be presented for the committee by Mr. Justice Otis.

Mr. Justice Otis read the memorial for Mr. Faricy.

Whatever may be our personal philosophy, few of us who knew Roland Faricy can doubt that a benevolent Fate guided his destiny in the last months of a busy and fruitful life. For many professional men the time is never quite propitious to embark on that long-delayed and often-postponed family adventure, which parents plan and dream about. But in August of last summer, Roland and Clare Faricy and all of their four children knelt together in the great cathedral at Lyons, France, while their eldest son, Robert, was ordained a Jesuit priest. It is not difficult to imagine the depth of a parent's pride in witnessing and taking part in such a solemn and triumphant ceremony.

Following the ordination, all of his family, including his three daughters-in-law, remained together in Spain for what must have been a memorable vacation. After a leisurely trip home in September, Mr. Faricy resumed his professional duties in St. Paul, and remained in good health and high spirits until a few days before he died on November 16, 1962.

It was characteristic of him that while he was ill he conveyed his deep gratitude to the nurses and Sisters who attended him, and showed much concern for the trouble he felt he was causing them. In addition, to each of his family separately, with expressions of confidence and devotion, he gave counsel and encouragement in the hope it would sustain them in later years.

It was with such affection and regard for his wife Clare and his sons, Robert, Richard, John, and Roland that he dedicated his life.

Mr. Faricy was born on a farm in Credit River on March 29, 1898, one of ten children. Whatever other talents he may have had, and they were many, he confessed to being the world's worst farmer. This aversion, however, did not relieve him of the responsibility of milking 20 cows each day before leaving for high school, where he graduated as valedictorian.

At the age of 16 he was teaching school, then finished Mankato Teachers College, and after a brief stint in the army attended St. Paul College of Law. While there he acted as a law clerk for Alf Boyeson, Kenneth Brill, and my father, and upon receiving his law degree became a member of that firm. For the remainder of his life Roland Faricy retained that association, forming a continuing partnership with Warren Burger, Richard Moore, Harry Costello, Warren Hart, and myself. Four of his associates have gone on the bench — Judge Brill, Judge Burger, Judge Leonard Keyes, Jr., and I.

Again it seems more than a matter of chance that Mr. Faricy lived to experience the profound satisfaction of standing before the Supreme Court of Minnesota in October, 1961 and moving the admission of his son Roland to practice law in the courts of this state.

In his dealings with his firm he was generous in the extreme. He drove himself unmercifully, but seemed always to be available for counseling his associates and his clients. We looked to him for quick, clear resolution of our most difficult business and legal problems. While partners and clients leaned heavily on him, Roland Faricy apparently had an unlimited capacity for assuming and carrying responsibility without complaint. He had, to a remarkable degree, the faculty of identifying himself both with his clients and with the members of his firm. His partners and younger associates were to him not merely lawyers, but in every sense of the word we were part of a family.

Through all of his remarkable career Roland Faricy retained a sense of humor which I have rarely seen equaled. Typical of his wit was the remark he made on the occasion of his being shut in the Cudahy packing plant at Newport for a protracted length of time at the height of a violent labor dispute. "And here I am," he said, "a starving Irishman, locked in with a million pounds of prime beef and choice bacon, and it has to be on a Friday."

He was an inveterate storyteller and was often the butt of his own jokes. No one took greater pride than he in the Auld Sod of his forebears, and it was a severe blow to his ego that he experienced when he returned to the land of his ancestors to show his wife Clare, who was a Sullivan, the beauties of his own family's corner of the Emerald Isle. When he found the little village where his great grandparents had lived, and asked a grizzled old patriarch where he might find cousins in the community who bore his family name, the only answer he got was, "Sullivans we have indeed, but I have never heard of any Spaniards named Farricci in this part of the countryside."

Roland Faricy respected the law and the courts as he revered his church. One of his favorite quotations was from the great Italian legal scholar, Piero Calamandrei:

"The judge who becomes accustomed to rendering justice is like the priest who becomes accustomed to saying Mass. Fortunate indeed is that country priest who, approaching the altar with senile step, feels the same sacred turbulation in his breast which he felt as a young priest at his first Mass. And happy is that magistrate who even unto the day of his retirement, experiences the same religious exaltation in rendering judgment which made him tremble 50 years before, when as a young praetor he handed down his first decision."

Roland Faricy believed in tithing not only for his church but for his profession and the community as well. For many years he taught at the St. Paul College of Law, was active in the Ramsey County Bar Association, and became its president in 1946. However, no honor or responsibility gave him more pleasure or satisfaction than his appointment by President Kennedy to the Judicial Review Committee of the Administrative Conference of the United States. This small group of distinguished lawyers and judges, selected by the President to study administrative procedures, paid him honor in a tribute expressed by their chairman, Ashley Sellers, a former partner of the late Homer Cummings. He said:

"It has been my very good fortune to have had serve with me a uniformly dedicated group of professionally competent and morally high-principled persons. The performance and disposition of Roland Faricy is typical of the entire Committee. Speaking now both for myself and for all the members of the Committee, I deeply appreciate his attentive and valuable efforts toward the work of the Committee and, particularly, his wise counsel and his invariably kind and gentlemanly attitude toward each of his fellow Committee members."

Finally, Roland Faricy always remained keenly aware of the obligations he felt he owed his community. He was a founder and early president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and later president of the St. Paul Association of Commerce. He also found time to serve as president of the St. Paul Club and the Athletic Club. Recently he served as director of the St. Paul Metropolitan Improvement Committee, having previously acted as co-chairman of the 1960 Charter Amendment Committee. It is therefore understandable why the energy and zeal, which propelled him courageously into the maelstrom of civic turmoil, prompted him occasionally to utter a prayer which in the last few years of his life may have helped to slacken his pace:

"Ease the pounding of my heart by the quieting of my mind. Steady my hurried pace with a vision of the eternal reach of time. Give me, amidst the confusion of my day, the calmness of the everlasting hills. Teach me the art of slowing down to look at a flower, to chat with a friend, to pet a dog, to read a few lines from a good book.

"Remind me each day of the fable of the hare and the tortoise, that I may know that the race is not always to the swift; that there is more to life than increasing its speed. Let me look upward into the branches of the towering trees, and know that they grow tall because they grow slowly and well.

"Inspire me, Lord, to send my roots deep into the soil of life's enduring values, that I may grow toward the stars of my greater destiny."

What we have written today is but a passing glimpse of an affectionate husband and father, a solicitous partner and devout parishioner, as well as a zealous advocate, and unselfish citizen. Those of us who were blessed with his friendship are grateful that he touched our lives. We pray that he may have imparted in each of us, some measure of his wisdom, his kindness, his gentle humor and devotion to duty, with which he was so richly endowed.

MR. MILEY: Michael J. Baglio, Carl W. Cummins and Merlyn C. Green have prepared the memorial for Mr. Lucius N. Foster. However, because of illness and other reasons of equally compelling substance, none of these three is able to be here with us this morning. Mr. Eugene D. Buckley has kindly consented to read this memorial.

Mr. Buckley read the memorial for Mr. Foster.

Lucius Newton Foster was born in Beaver Dam, Wisconsin, on February 13, 1886, the son of Charles Foster and Sarah Newton Foster. He graduated from Northwestern University Law School in June of 1912 and on October 12 of that same year he was married to Helen Kemmler. Upon coming to St. Paul, he spent one year in postgraduate work at the St. Paul College of Law and was admitted to the practice of law in the State of Minnesota in 1913.

Early in his career he was employed by The Travelers Insurance Company of Hartford, Connecticut, and was for a time the sole legal claim representative in the State of Minnesota for that company. He was claim manager of both the St. Paul and Minneapolis branch offices of The Travelers Insurance Company until his retirement 42 years later. He was a man of outstanding ability and keen perception, who had an almost uncanny faculty for analyzing and discovering the capabilities and aptitudes of men. Under his guidance and training, the St. Paul and Minneapolis office produced more men for high and important positions in The Travelers Insurance Company than any other branch office in the United States. He commanded the respect of all of the members of the Bar and others who had occasion to come in contact with him in either his professional or personal life. He was recognized for his resourcefulness and efficiency in the administration of his office and his devotion to the just and equitable determination of claims. He was blessed with a sense of humor and a sharpness of wit which set him apart from his fellow men and made him an individual of rare exception whose memory will always be retained by those who were privileged to know him.

He was a member of St. Paul's Episcopal Church on the Hill, a past president of the Twin City Claim Managers' Council, a member of Delta Theta Phi legal fraternity and a charter member of Acacia fraternity.

Lucius Newton Foster died on March 24, 1963, leaving surviving him his wife, Helen Foster, his son, Dr. Orley W. Foster of Minneapolis, his daughter, Jane Koob of St. Paul, and four grandchildren in whom he had enormous pride. Although he has departed this life, the love and distinctiveness of his personality with which he has enriched the lives of others will live to infinity.

MR. MILEY: Albert E. Floan, John A. Pfaender and Robert A. Ebert have prepared the memorial for Mr. Linus C. Glotzbach, which will now be presented for the committee by Mr. Ebert.

Mr. Ebert read the memorial for Mr. Glotzbach.

Linus C. Glotzbach, son of George and Eva Glotzbach, was born November 23, 1900, in Sleepy Eye, Minnesota. After graduation from St. Mary's High School, he entered Notre Dame University where he received the degree of LL.B., cum laude, in 1923. He engaged in the general practice of law in New Ulm, Minnesota, forming a law partnership with the father of John Pfaender, member of this Committee. He served several terms as New Ulm city attorney.

Mr. Glotzbach occupied high government positions with the Works Progress Administration and the Federal Works Agency, serving as WPA district director and later state administrator. He was nominated by President Roosevelt in 1939 for the position of regional director of these agencies for seven states and was confirmed by the United States Senate. In this capacity he became acquainted and worked very closely with many business, professional, and political leaders of this state and country.

He left government service in September, 1942, to begin his career as an executive and lawyer for Northwest Airlines in St. Paul. This was at a time when the company not only operated a commercial airline but also was undertaking several major war projects for the Army Air Force. Mr. Glotzbach organized Northwest's personnel department, including the industrial and labor relations aspects thereof, and directed the staffing of all Northwest's war projects as the company personnel was expanded from an approximate pre-war 1,000 to a peak of more than 10,000.

In 1959, Mr. Glotzbach retired from his position as vice president of personnel, Northwest Airlines, because of ill health. At that time the Personnel Relations Conference of the Air Transport Association of America presented him with a scroll and plaque in appreciation of his eighteen years of service to Northwest Airlines and the airline industry. He was a founder and charter member of the Personnel Relations Conference and served as chairman, board member, counselor, and adviser to the personnel and industrial relations executives of American flag carriers and other major airlines of the world from 1942 to 1960 during a period of war and peace.

During his life, he was actively identified with important industrial, government, and civic activities. He was a member of the American, International, Minnesota State and Ramsey County Bar Associations and served on a number of important committees. Among many other organizations, he was a member of the Midway Club and the St. Paul Athletic Club.

Linus was vigorous, able, enthusiastic, and loyal to his friends, associates, and political party. He became a young executive at a time when the country was greatly in need of capable, strong, effective, imaginative, and creative men in an expanding nation. He gave unstintingly and unselfishly of his time and energy during his life and won affection and esteem as a lawyer, business executive, leader, and friend. Those who were fortunate to know and be associated with him will always cherish his memory.

Mr. Glotzbach, who passed away August 25, 1962, is survived by his widow, Helen Thorsen Glotzbach; one son, George Linus Glotzbach; three grandchildren; and one brother, Ralph Glotzbach.

Respectfully submitted,

MR. MILEY: John E. Daubney, Irving Gotlieb and Peter M. Scott have prepared the memorial for Mr. Allen L. Gray, which will now be presented by Mr. Gotlieb.

Mr. Gotlieb read the memorial for Mr. Gray.

At the height of his legal career Allen L. Gray passed away on November 6, 1962 at the age of 56. Born January 3, 1906 in Kaukana, Wisconsin, Allen was one of three sons of Isaac and Olga Ginsburg, each of whom became educated in the law and practiced in St. Paul, Minnesota. He received his elementary and secondary education in Monticello, Minnesota, and received his legal education at the University of Minnesota, graduating in 1927. Commencing practice immediately, he joined Jesse B. Calmenson in the Pioneer Building and stayed in the same office throughout his legal career.

An active sports enthusiast, he enjoyed skiing, horseback riding and golf, but his favorite pursuit was always fishing.

Entering Military Service in 1942, Allen chose the infantry, and soon thereafter he was sent to Fort Benning, Georgia, where he graduated from the Officers Candidate School as a Second Lieutenant on October 27, 1942. D-Day found him in the European theatre of operations assigned to the Third Army, and he participated in the military campaigns of Northern France, Ardennes, Rhineland and Central Europe. While overseas, his legal qualifications and judicial ability led to his transfer to the Department of Military Government, and he stayed in the ETO until November 21, 1945, at which time he returned to the United States, and was discharged as a First Lieutenant from Camp McCoy on February 26, 1946.

The strain of military life had overtaxed his heart and he returned to the practice of law with a cardiac condition which he refused to let interfere with his practice of law.

In 1947 his younger brother, Milton, joined him and his older brother, Simon, to form the firm of Gray & Gray, a closely knit partnership that engaged in the general practice of law, with Allen being particularly active in the field of real estate and corporate practice. Known as a gentlemanly lawyer whose courtly manners covered a rapier-like wit and a judicial temperament, he frequently served as a public member on arbitration hearings. Soon after returning from Military Service Allen was faced with one of the great challenges of his career — the defense of a man charged with murder. A skilled courtroom tactician, he and his brother Milton threw themselves into the defense of Arthur DeZeler, and he emerged from the case as a skilled criminal attorney with a reputation for tenacity and steadfastness of purpose.

Married on February 9, 1942 to the former Marjorie Dockman of St. Paul, the Grays had three children, all sons, as in his own family. An active member of the Mt. Zion Temple Synagogue in St. Paul, he also found time to take part in the activities of the Minnesota State Bar Association, the American Bar Association and the American Judicature Society, as well as the Red Cross and B'nai B'rith. Being forced to limit his physical activities by reason of his heart condition, Allen particularly enjoyed the company of his fellow lawyers whose respect he had earned in the crucible of the courtroom. Death came suddenly on election eve, November 6, 1962, while attending a party with a group of friends. Allen Gray left surviving his wife, Marjorie, and his three sons — Roger, 18; David, 14; and Richard, 9, as well as a host of friends.

MR. MILEY: A committee consisting of the Honorable Martin A. Nelson, John Christopherson and Roger L. Ginkel has prepared the memorial for Mr. J. Lisle Jesmer, which will now be presented for the committee by Mr. Ginkel.

Mr. Ginkel read the memorial for Mr. Jesmer.

J. Lisle Jesmer was born on September 16, 1891, on a farm near Princeton, Minnesota, the elder son of Sidney and Mary Jane Jesmer. He received his high school education at Princeton, and later attended St. John's University at Collegeville. Thereafter he was employed by the St. Paul Daily News while attending the St. Paul College of Law, from which he graduated in 1914 and was admitted to the Bar in that year.

Mr. Jesmer immediately commenced the practice of law in St. Paul with William E. Prescott under the firm name of Jesmer & Prescott, which later became Jesmer, Prescott & Hatch, then Cowern & Jesmer, and Cowern, Jesmer & Christopherson. In 1923 he became interested in the development, construction and financing of multiple dwelling apartment buildings in St. Paul and discontinued the general practice of law in 1930, and thereafter actively engaged in buying and selling real estate and real estate contracts, in which business he continued until his death.

He was married to Ann Morris on August 27, 1916, who preceded him in death, and subsequently was married to Mary Van Camp, his surviving widow. He is survived also by his children Mary Jesmer, Elizabeth Morrissey, J. Lisle, Jr., John, and Frank Jesmer, a brother Lester Jesmer, and 17 grandchildren.

Mr. Jesmer was a member of the Assumption Catholic Church, the Southview Country Club, the St. Paul Athletic Club, and was a member of the Minnesota and Ramsey County Bar Associations until his last illness.

Lisle was a strong man, vigorous, restless, and talented, with an engaging personality which charmed and delighted his friends. In his youth he played baseball, tennis, and golf, and later handball. He was a recognized chess player, but reserved his deeper affection and skill for bridge. He became a member of the Grand Slam Club, was a charter member of the St. Paul Bridge Club, and played daily at the St. Paul Athletic Club participating in all available tournaments and winning his just share of them. At the Athletic Club it was as difficult to beat him to the card table at the noon lunch hour as it was to overcome his enthusiasm and good humor.

Lisle was deeply devoted to his family, entertained them and his friends in artistic style, and was at all times a delightful and gracious host. He retained the interest of all who knew him and he remained always a true and loyal friend. He was sincerely loved by his many friends and his memory will be deeply cherished by all who associated with him.

MR. MILEY: Edward E. Cleary, Carl R. Peterson and Ralph Stacker have prepared the memorial for Mr. Louis F. Kiesewetter, which will now be presented for the committee by Mr. Cleary.

Mr. Cleary read the memorial for Mr. Kiesewetter.

Louis F. Kiesewetter was born in Secaucus, New Jersey on September 17, 1886 where he spent his youth.

He entered the Armed Forces of the United States during World War I and served his country honorably and was disabled as a result of this service. Because of his interest in servicemen he became a commander of the St. Paul Post No. 2 of the Disabled American Veterans and was a member of the American Legion Post No. 8 for 28 years. He was also a member of Montgomery Lodge No. 258, A.F. & A.M., and he was also a member of the various Masonic groups. He was laid to rest in Acacia Park Cemetery.

In furtherance of his education, he attended the St. Paul College of Law and was graduated from that school and admitted to practice law in the State of Minnesota in the year 1925. He served as an Assistant County Attorney for a great number of years under Chris O'Brien, under Supreme Court Justice Harry H. Peterson, under Probate Judge Michael F. Kincaid, and under James F. Lynch, and for a short period of time under our present County Attorney, William B. Randall. Those that knew Louis F. Kiesewetter never referred to him by any other name except "Louie" and anyone that he contacted at the second or third meeting would not address him as Mr. Kiesewetter or Louis, but only "Louie". He had the personality, the warmth and the love for people that you would not hesitate to call him Louie the second time you met him. It is most unusual for an Assistant County Attorney to continue under successive County Attorneys the way Louie continued for a number of years. Often newly-elected County Attorneys want their own men to serve under them rather than take over as assistants their predecessors in office. But not as far as Louie was concerned. Each successive County Attorney wanted to retain Louie because of his interest in people and goodwill he created in office. People come to a County Attorney's office with problems such as domestic, financial, which really are not the function of a County Attorney's office, but Louie felt that their problems were his problems and instead of telling them that this immediate problem is not something that is under the jurisdiction of the County Attorney, he would advise them, counsel them, and often make telephone calls merely to straighten out their affairs. He made friends daily for any County Attorney that was in office under whom he served. This valuable asset of Louie's all successive County Attorneys recognized and retained Louie during their tenure.

He left surviving him his wife, Lillian E. Kieseewetter who still resides at 729 Dayton Avenue, and a sister, Mrs. William H. Wurdemann of Winter Park, Florida.

Throughout his life Louis F. Kieseewetter was known by all for his fairness, integrity and ability. It is difficult to portray his great capacity for friendship and his zest for life. His countless friends bear both audible and silent testimony to his generous and understanding nature. Never losing sight of the great goals of the law, he yet retained a great warmth of feeling and understanding for all with whom he came in contact. Truly here was one who exemplified the highest attribute of his chosen profession.

MR. MILEY: A committee consisting of Harry W. Oehler, Harold E. Ruttenberg and Elmer H. Wiblishauser has prepared the memorial for Mr. Carlyle Knudtson. This memorial will be presented at this time by Mr. Wiblishauser.

Mr. Wiblishauser read the memorial for Mr. Knudtson.

Carlyle Knudtson was born on November 4, 1904, at Ettrick, Wisconsin, the son of Arthur C. Knudtson and Emma L. Knudtson. At the age of 1½ years, the family moved from Wisconsin to Montana and North Dakota, where his father operated various farms and several merchandise stores. It is a distinct credit to Mr. Knudtson's memory that the Town of Carlyle, Montana, was named in his honor.

Mr. Knudtson attended grade schools in New England and Bismarck, North Dakota. His family moved to Saint Paul, Minnesota, where he attended Central High School and he was graduated from there on June 13, 1923. He then moved to California where he attended the Los Angeles College of Law. He then returned to Saint Paul, enrolled at Saint Paul College of Law, now William Mitchell College of Law, and was graduated from that school on June 20, 1929, with the degree of Bachelor of Laws.

Mr. Knudtson was admitted to practice law in the State of Minnesota on April 4, 1931, and continued in general practice until the time of his death on September 27, 1962, at the age of 57 years. He had maintained his practice for almost 32 years in the same building, the New York Building, in downtown Saint Paul.

During World War II, Mr. Knudtson served his country honorably as a lieutenant in the Infantry from May, 1942 to August, 1944.

On August 8, 1942, Mr. Knudtson was married to Alice L. Carlson of Saint Paul, Minnesota. He is survived by his wife, a sister, Doris McAllister, residing in Washington, D.C., and his parents.

During his lifetime, Mr. Knudtson was a faithful and devoted Mason. He belonged to St. Paul Lodge No. 3, was a 32nd degree Scottish Rite Mason and a member of Osman Temple. For several years he served on the Wills and Bequest Committee of Osman Temple. He was also a member of the Osman Temple Legion of Honor.

Mr. Knudtson was highly respected by clients and friends alike for his legal knowledge and for his legal ability. It may be added that he served his clients very well during his lifetime. He was widely known for his good nature and he possessed a genial personality.

For many years he had been a member of the Ramsey County and Minnesota State Bar Associations. He was also a long time member of Phi Beta Gamma Legal Fraternity. The last rites were conducted under the auspices of St. Paul Lodge No. 3.

MR. MILEY: Oliver W. Hedeem, Ulric C. Scott and Edward W. Spring have prepared the memorial for Mr. Walter E. Kunze, which will now be presented for the committee by Mr. Scott.

Mr. Scott read the memorial for Mr. Kunze.

Walter E. Kunze was born in Saint Paul on July 24, 1891, the son of Edward and Emma Ott Kunze and died on December 24th, 1962, at the age of 71 years. He moved with his family to New Ulm in 1897 and resided there until his return to Saint Paul in September, 1911 when he entered the St. Paul College of Law. He was a graduate of the New Ulm High School and the St. Paul College of Law and admitted to the Minnesota Bar in 1913.

Mr. Kunze began his career in 1915 with the Merchants Trust Company, which later became First Trust Company of Saint Paul, and retired as its Vice President and Trust Officer on July 31st, 1956. In his application for a position, he gave as references the Honorable J. C. Michael, Judge of the Ramsey County District Court and P. J. McLaughlin, an attorney then of 36 years standing in Saint Paul. Walter Kunze was a Past President of the Corporate Fiduciaries Association of the State of Minnesota and a long-time instructor in the Saint Paul Chapter of the American Institute of Banking. During his association with the Trust Company, he was active in Corporate Fiduciary affairs and known and respected throughout the State for his keen knowledge of Trust matters.

He was a member of the Saint Paul Athletic Club, the Ramsey County Bar Association, the Minnesota State Bar Association and Saint Paul's United Church of Christ.

His honesty, integrity and willingness to help with the problems of others will always live in the memories of his associates. He was a sympathetic person, never angry or critical in any way of his subordinates, diligent and thorough in his work. We who were associated with him for over 35 years never knew Walter to do an unkind deed or say an unkind word to anyone. He was always considerate of the opinions of others, a gracious companion, loved and respected for his humility by all who knew him.

Mr. Kunze had a deep interest in music and was a talented musician. He was a member of the New Ulm High School Orchestra and later of a private orchestral group in New Ulm.

On May 30, 1917, Walter Kunze married Caroline F. Brenning who survives him. He also left a daughter, Ruth, the wife of Robert E. Debel, of Marshall, Minnesota, a member of the Bar of this State, and a son, Walter E. Kunze, Jr., of Arlington Heights, Illinois, two grandchildren and two sisters, Martha Teichrow and Stonia Kunze.

Walter was a devoted husband and father; a man of sound religious principles and moral strength.

We who were his friends and associates miss him.

MR. MILEY: A committee consisting of Michael J. Galvin, Mark H. Gehan and John J. Sexton has prepared the memorial for Mr. Geoffrey Patrick Mahoney, which will now be presented for the committee by Mr. Sexton.

Mr. Sexton read the memorial for Mr. Mahoney.

Geoffrey Patrick Mahoney was born on a farm in County Kerry, Ireland, near the town of Kenmore, on July 27th, 1890.

His parents were Mary Clifford and Patrick Mahoney. He was the second of a family of ten children.

He attended the Irish National School of his home district and completed the course offered there, which was equivalent to that of the United States high school.

He then worked as an apprentice in a general store in the town of Kenmore until he accumulated money enough to defray his passage to America and thus fulfill a boyhood ambition.

Coming to America, he arrived in Boston on June 2, 1910. He came to St. Paul shortly after and made his home with his aunt, Mrs. Margaret Doyle and his cousin, John Doyle, long-time Probation Officer of Ramsey County.

His first position in St. Paul was at Bannon's Department store. There he sold linens, having learned the linen trade during his apprenticeship in Ireland. He later worked in the linen departments of Schuneman's and at Donaldson's in Minneapolis, and eventually became a buyer of linens.

Shortly after his arrival in St. Paul, he took a night course in business at the Globe Business College and later enrolled in the night engineering classes at the University of Minnesota. He there completed a course in Engineering Draftsmanship and thereafter took a position on the engineering staff of the Minneapolis and St. Louis Railway where he worked until he entered the U.S. Army in 1918.

Upon his discharge from the Army at the end of World War I, he enrolled at the Minnesota College of Law in Minneapolis and later transferred to the St. Paul College of Law in 1920 when he joined the staff of the Northern Pacific Railway.

In 1921 he left railroad work and began work as a casualty adjuster for insurance companies.

In January of 1922 he was made Claims Manager of the Minneapolis office of the U. S. Casualty Company.

He graduated from the St. Paul College of Law in 1922 and was admitted to practice law in Minnesota on September 6, 1922. He was thereafter admitted to practice in the Federal Courts. He was admitted to practice before the U.S. Supreme Court on October 7, 1940.

Mr. Mahoney opened his first office for the practice of law in Minneapolis in the year 1928 and continued to practice in that city until his death on June 24, 1962.

Geoffrey Mahoney married Mary Sexton of St. Paul on August 21, 1922, and they raised a family of seven children, four sons and three daughters.

Two sons, Geoffrey and Richard, are practicing attorneys. They joined their father in the partnership of Mahoney & Mahoney with offices in Minneapolis. James Mahoney, the youngest son, is at present a student at the William Mitchell College of Law.

Paul Mahoney, another son, entered the medical field and is now a practicing Radiologist in California.

His three daughters, Mary Catherine, now Mrs. Carl Baumgaertner, and Elizabeth, now Mrs. Paul Spillane, reside in St. Paul. Margaret Ann, now Mrs. John McMahon, resides in Appleton, Wisconsin.

Geoffrey P. Mahoney continued his practice of law at Minneapolis until the day of his sudden death on June 24, 1962. His residence remained in St. Paul from the time he arrived in this country until his death.

He and Mrs. Mahoney made several trips to Europe, and especially to Ireland, during his lifetime.

His wife, all of his seven children, and eighteen grandchildren survive him.

Although Mr. Mahoney engaged in what we of the Bar term the general practice of law, he early became recognized as highly proficient in the defense of negligence cases and he numbered among his clients a large number of insurance companies engaged in underwriting the common hazards of life and business. This phase of his business brought him into prominence in all of the trial and appellate courts functioning in Minnesota. That he was a strenuous trial competitor, all who opposed or observed him when advocating the cause of his client in those courts, will surely attest. He was ever mindful that the highest duty of the advocate was loyalty to the client and to the cause that he undertook to maintain or to defend; and, in the performance of that duty, he felt and fulfilled in the highest degree his obligation to maintain the dignity and honor of the Court before which he was privileged to appear.

Throughout his life Mr. Mahoney retained more than a mite of his Irish brogue, wit and graciousness. These characteristics, supplemented by his exceptional knowledge of human nature, and his unending pursuit of the facts and the law applicable to the issues involved, combined to make him a complete and well-rounded trial lawyer. He was recognized as such.

If a man may be accepted as a competent judge of his own capacities and adaptations, it may now be said that Geoffrey P. Mahoney chose well in selecting the profession of law as his career.

Although often in contention in the courts with his brethren of the Bar, he was able, in the bosom of his private life, to forget their former struggles, and he left behind no resentments and no enmities. He fought his best and was content to abide the result, realizing always the uncertainties inherent in trial by jury.

The court room did not, however, absorb all his energies as a lawyer. He was a wise and astute counselor and his sympathies were readily aroused and earnestly exerted in behalf of those seeking his judgment and advice in their troubles and perplexities.

Typical of the Irishman he was, he loved fun; he loved music and loved to joke and banter. And, what is more uncommon, he enjoyed being bantered himself. This great gift the good fairies conferred upon him at his Irish birth never deserted him. His friends were legion. They represented all schools of opinion and came from all ranks and walks of life. He knew how the whole world lived.

We will not here enlarge upon his exemplary private life; suffice to say, that within that circle no man was ever more blessed in the devotion of a good wife and the love of his children. The purity and beauty of his family life tell why the pride and interest which his family, his friends and neighbors felt in him were always accompanied with the warm light of love.

Geoffrey P. Mahoney will always be remembered as one who served with an unstinted devotion to his family, his profession, his generation and his country.

MR. MILEY: Michael J. Baglio, Eugene D. Buckley and Kenneth W. Green have prepared the memorial for Mr. Thomas J. Spence, which will now be presented for the committee by Mr. Green.

Mr. Green read the memorial for Mr. Spence.

Thomas J. Spence, the second-born son of Thomas and Anna Spence, was born in St. Paul on August 5, 1900. He spent his formative years residing with his parents, his three sisters, Ruth, Josephine, and Helen, and his brother, William, in the Summit Hill District of St. Paul.

Following his graduation from Central High School, he served in the U. S. Marines and, thereafter, attended the College of St. Thomas and the University of Minnesota.

A 1926 graduate of the St. Paul College of Law, Mr. Spence was admitted to the Bar of the State of Minnesota in that same year.

Mr. Spence is survived by his wife, the former Lucille A. Pync; a son, Thomas W. Spence, a student at the University of Minnesota; two daughters of Santa Barbara, California — Sally Ann, a registered nurse, and Patricia, a school teacher; and another daughter, Sharon, a registered nurse working at the Charles T. Miller Hospital.

He was a member of the Ramsey County, Minnesota State and American Bar Associations, belonged to several defense trial lawyer organizations, was a member of the Knights of Columbus, the Delta Theta Phi Law Fraternity, St. Luke's Men's Club, St. Paul Athletic Club, and the University Club.

Tom Spence's early days of practice began with Kay Todd, from whom he learned many of the skills which served him so well in later life as a trial lawyer.

Later his practice was joined with Charles Sterling and Richard Converse as the firm of Sterling, Converse & Spence. In about 1935 Mr. Spence determined to head a law firm of his own and did so until the time of his death on August 24, 1962. During this later period the firm was known as Spence, Baglio & Buckley.

Tom Spence will be well remembered by the Judges, Referees, and other attorneys before whom and with whom he practiced, for his tenacity and thoroughness in preparation and presentation of evidence so as to represent his client to the best of his ability. Industrial Commissioner James Pomush was moved to speak in this light of Mr. Spence during the recent Fall Institute at the St. Paul Hotel, when he used words of high praise of Mr. Spence's thoroughness in preparation. It certainly would have pleased Mr. Spence had he been there to hear Commissioner Pomush.

Tom Spence will also be well remembered by a great number of his younger colleagues at the Bar in St. Paul and the surrounding area, for the education he gave them during their various tenures as his associates. Many, many successful and prominent attorneys, both in trial law and other fields, owe their initial apprenticeship training and early skills to Mr. Spence, who developed within himself the expert skill of an excellent trial lawyer and was able to pass on this skill to those associated with him. The three writers of this memorial acknowledge with gratitude the training and experience gained under the guidance of Tom Spence.

Tom Spence will long be remembered by the many attorneys with whom he has practiced and the numerous Judges and Referees before whom he has advocated his clients' claims. We will sorely miss his wisdom and forceful guidance now that he is gone.

It is a privilege to do honor to this lawyer and friend.

MR. MILEY: A committee consisting of the Honorable Albin S. Pearson, William H. Fallon and Maurice W. Stoffer has prepared the memorial for Mr. Edgar G. Vaughan, which will now be presented for the committee by Mr. Fallon.

Mr. Fallon read the memorial for Mr. Vaughan.

Edgar G. Vaughan was born March 1, 1894 at Pine City, Minnesota, and after completing grade school and one year of high school there, he removed to St. Paul and attended Mechanic Arts High School at which he was graduated in 1912. Until 1915 he was a clerk in the legal department of the Great Northern Railway Company. From 1915 into 1922, except while in the military service, he was a Senior Clerk in the Department of Public Works.

From August 30, 1918 he served in the United States Army until discharged with the rank of Sergeant on March 26, 1919. From 1923 to 1926 he attended St. Thomas College Law School and shortly after receiving his LL.B. degree was admitted to the Bar. While at Law School he was employed in the predecessor of Doherty, Rumble and Butler; eventually becoming a partner; retiring in July 1962 and removing to California. He was a member of the Ramsey County, Minnesota State and American Bar Associations.

He was a charter member of Argonne Post No. 215 of the American Legion, its Commander in 1924, and continued to be active after its merger with Navy-Marine Post No. 513 into Highland Park Post No. 215. He was Commander of the Fourth District in 1926 and for many years was very active in County, State and National Legion affairs. As with many other projects, he contributed greatly to the conversion in 1932 into a clubhouse of the Mattocks School at Snelling and Randolph, a building of such great antiquity in the short history of this locality that a large number of people here and elsewhere have fond memories of it.

In September, 1937 he was married to Adalyn Chell, well known in this city since her childhood. Last Christmas Eve while Mr. and Mrs. Vaughan were passengers in an automobile driven by an intimate friend from St. Paul, an oncoming car, stolen in Massachusetts, crossed the divider at extremely high speed causing the death of Mr. and Mrs. Vaughan and their driver and severely injuring the widow of Mr. Vaughan's brother. The sole nearest kin is a niece, Miss Katherine Lawler of Rochester, Minnesota. There are 12 surviving first cousins, all of whom, except one, reside in Minnesota, including Mr. Martin J. Hurley, a highly respected veteran member of this association.

Mr. Vaughan was very active as a member of St. Gregory's Parish and of its Board of Trustees.

Throughout his long professional career, he was associated with only one law firm and because of his attributes and those of his associates as well as the nature of the firm's business and the eminence of its clients, he was very greatly respected by everyone who knew him well and by many who knew him only slightly as well as by still others who had never met him personally. Those who knew him best valued his friendship immensely, enjoyed to the fullest his gracious presence singly as well as in a group; and deeply mourn their loss of a true friend, an interesting and stimulating companion, a man of ability, integrity and loyalty as well as an excellent fellow lawyer.

MR. MILEY: Fred A. Kueppers, Worth K. Rice and Elmer H. Wiblishauser have prepared the memorial for Mr. Robert F. Wille, which will now be presented for the committee by Mr. Wiblishauser.

Mr. Wiblishauser read the memorial for Mr. Wille.

Robert F. Wille was born on December 26, 1887, at Saint Paul, Minnesota, the son of William Frederick Wille and Emma Sophia (Volkert) Wille. He received his preliminary education at St. John's Lutheran School, Van Buren Elementary School and was a graduate of Mechanic Arts High School. After graduation from High School, Mr. Wille entered the Saint Paul College of Law, now the William Mitchell College of Law, and was graduated in June, 1915, having earned a Bachelor of Laws degree.

Mr. Wille was admitted to practice law in Minnesota on July 1, 1915, and continued his practice until the time of his death on November 17, 1962. He was particularly interested in real estate law and he attained a high degree of competency in that field. He was also most successful in an economic sense.

On September 2, 1914, Mr. Wille was married to Dorothea K. Brenning who survives him. To them were born four children, namely: Robert F. Wille, Jr., Attorney at Law, Saint Paul; Reverend Warren H. Wille, Pastor of Faith Lutheran Church, Denver, Colorado; John H. Wille, Boulder Printing Service, Boulder, Colorado; Caroline E. Boshea of Scarsdale, New York, all of whom survive. He is also survived by seventeen grandchildren.

It was Mr. Wille's purpose and determination that his children should have an opportunity for higher education, and it is a deserved tribute to him that each of his children attained the objective sought by their father. Due to the exigencies of time and intervening military service, all four children graduated from College in the same year — in June, 1950, two of them from Macalester College, a third from Concordia Theological Seminary, Springfield, Illinois, and the fourth, from Saint Paul College of Law. All are successful in their respective careers.

Throughout his lifetime, Mr. Wille was a devout Christian. For many years, he was secretary of St. John's Lutheran Church and president of Pilgrim Lutheran Church, Saint Paul.

At the time of his death and for ten years prior thereto, he was secretary of St. John's Hospital, Saint Paul. He was also vice-president of the Board of Governors of the Lutheran Home, 121 Virginia Street, Saint Paul, Minnesota. For a period of five years he served as vice-president of Randolph Heights Parents and Teachers Association. To all of these organizations, he gave generously not only of his time, but he contributed much in a material sense.

In his early years, Mr. Wille was athletically inclined, especially was he interested in baseball. He played in the Amateur League and he traveled considerably over the state with his team. After his playing days were over, he continued his interest as an ardent fan, and was a long-time member of the Old Timers Hot Stove League.

From 1920, Mr. Wille practiced his profession in association with his good friend, Daniel J. Keefe, and until Mr. Keefe retired in 1952. From January, 1952, and until his death, Mr. Wille was associated in the practice of law with his son, Robert F. Wille, Jr. For many years he was a valued and active member of the Ramsey County and Minnesota State Bar Associations.

MR. MILEY: A committee consisting of Joseph A. Coduti, Edmund C. Meisinger and Fiori L. Palarine has prepared the memorial for Mr. Emil O. Winter, which will now be presented for the committee by Mr. Meisinger.

Mr. Meisinger read the memorial for Mr. Winter.

Emil O. Winter was born in Saint Paul, Minnesota, on the 28th day of March, 1897, one of five children born to Oscar Winter and Hannah Winter. Mr. Winter was a lifelong resident of Saint Paul, Minnesota.

On August 30, 1930, at Hayward, Wisconsin, he was married to Nina M. Winter who survives him together with one son, Phillip M. Winter, of Los Angeles, California, and one daughter, Marjory H. Christensen, of Minneapolis, Minnesota.

Mr. Winter attended grade school and high school in the City of Saint Paul. He was graduated from the St. Paul College of Law in 1928 and was admitted to the Bar on June 14th of the same year. Upon his graduation from high school Mr. Winter was employed by Northern Pacific Railroad where he remained an employee until his death. He was vice president and attorney for the Northern Pacific Railway Clerks Credit Union of St. Paul, and his practice consisted primarily of services rendered the Credit Union and probate work. He maintained an office in the Hamm Building in Saint Paul with his brother, Dr. H. O. Winter.

Emil was interested in community activities and prominent in church circles. He served as a deacon on the Calvary Bible Church for many years. He was a devoted family man and a kindly gentleman, well respected by his fellow employees and highly regarded by his clients and fellow lawyers.

MR. MILEY: Your Honor, these memorials have now all been fully presented, and I now move this court through you, Judge Parks, for an order directing the clerk to spread these memorials upon the permanent minutes of this court; further, for an order directing the clerk to send copies of these memorials to the next of kin of those we have here today remembered.

JUDGE PARKS: The motion is granted and the clerk so instructed. The Court at this time takes this opportunity of thanking all those who have gathered here today to pay their mutual respects. The full bench concurs in these memorials and expresses deep sympathy. I also wish to thank the members of the other benches who sit here with us today, the Municipal bench, the members of the Supreme Court of our state, the Circuit Court of Appeals, and especially do I thank Judge Sanborn, Judge John Sanborn, for he is here. I am sure in the last thirty years whenever he is in town, he has paid his joint respects here.

I do not wish to prolong these proceedings, but I would in closing before we adjourn like to supplement the memorial so ably given by Mr. Randall for Judge McNally. Judge Carlton McNally we have served with. I personally have a strange feeling that he is here sitting on this bench counseling us with his usual kindly attitude. I can't think of any higher tribute than to call your memory back to the famous historian, H. G. Wells, who was importuned by some learned man to give him the names of the ten great men in history. He undertook to do so (I am thinking of Judge McNally's dedication to things beyond the call of duty). He gave such names as Abraham Lincoln, Jesus, Buddha, Confucius, Aristotle, Asoka, Bacon, and a few others, and commented upon the fact that these men were famous in history because of their dedication to human beings and to the welfare of society. He ended up with this: "The great mass of men everywhere worry themselves into endless graves, while here and there a great unselfish soul forgets itself into immortality."

There never was a judge leaving this bench as he did who was as beloved as Judge Carlton F. McNally by all who knew him well.

With that, ladies and gentlemen, this court will stand adjourned sine die.
